Professor Meenakshi Apte, an alumnus and a faculty of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, is known to and is respected by many of us as a champion of the rights of women and children, a great educator and greater human being. In a career spanning nearly fifty years, Mrs. Apte did not only dedicate her time and energy to educating generations of social workers, but contributed immensely to the field of social work by successfully initiating several path breaking interventions. The Special Cell for Women and Children, Swadhar, and Family Court are some of the projects that she had conceived. In 1994, after retiring as Head of the Department of Family and Child Welfare, TISS, she has tirelessly continued her active contribution to the field of social work in innumerable ways and has continued to be an inspiration to people in all walks of life.
